PREFACE

THERE is little need for an extended preface to this book, for the title-page shows very plainly its purport and the nature of the contents. I would simply say here, that the following pages are chiefly intended for lovers and collectors of literary curiosities, a class of readers who are, I believe, on the increase nowadays. People with such tastes do not so much care for the books "which," they are told, "no gentleman's library should be without," as for books that are curious, paradoxical, out of the common run, and not before met with in the course of their reading. This book should therefore well meet their requirements. And I can only hope that it will also succeed in attracting the attention and satisfying the curiosity of a few, at least, of that somewhat eccentric band of bibliophiles whose ranks I joined some years ago, and have never regretted my enlistment.

INTRODUCTION

INTRODUCTION

AM rather afraid that the title will scarcely give a correct idea of the contents of this book, for there is an old cabala and a new cabala, and these two are very different. The first is mainly Hebrew, and occasionally Greek; the second is almost entirely Latin, and of much later invention, not being heard of till about A.D. 1530. The old cabala per gematriam, as it was technically spoken of, is well known to Biblical scholars everywhere. The new cabala is scarcely mentioned in any books of reference, and the works containing specimens of it are rare in the highest degree; this latter fact accounting for the general want of knowledge on the subject. What I mean by saying that the title may convey a wrong idea is that ninetynine persons out of a hundred would think of the old Hebrew and Greek cabala and the Jewish fancies therein displayed, whereas our Biblia Cabalistica has mainly to do with the record of Christian fancy on Christian themes; while here the Latin tongue is the one chiefly used. It matches my Biblia Anagrammatica, and runs on exactly parallel lines with it, being a collection of Bible texts treated in this case cabalistically, as they are in that case anagrammatically, and therefore I could hardly choose any other title.

However, I have not failed to notice in an appendix at the end of this book some of the strongest and most interesting examples of the older cabala, so I hope that readers who only expected this will not be altogether disappointed.

Moreover, some general remarks on this more ancient part of the subject are needed now, to begin with, as an introduction to the whole. Mystical and Cabalistic Numbers in the Ancient Scriptures of the Old and New Testament.

This curious branch of theological science has been investigated and discussed by many writers, ancient and modern, and quite recently two writers, Dr. Bullinger and Mr. J. H. Weldon, have gone deeply into the matter and added many curious coincidences not before noticed.

The instances given by them are by no means of equal value, and some are not very convincing. But their cabalistic deductions from some of the numbers of the Bible, notably 8, 13, and 153, are so remarkable and novel that I have included the best of them in my survey of the cabalistic numbers in the appendix. To readers not conversant with gematria they will be a surprise, and, taken in connection with other instances adduced, will, I think, be sufficient to show that there may very possibly be something more than mere random fancy in the way many special numbers and names of Holy Writ are used by the original writers. Personally, I claim no more from my inferences than this, although many professed students go much farther.

Anyhow, the following statement is unobjectionable: symbolical meaning of numbers in Holy Scripture deserves more study and attention than it has received in recent times." This is a remark of Dr. Christopher Wordsworth, a learned and judicious scholar, who was the very reverse in every way of an extreme man. It was made some years ago, and since then the science of theology has made such rapid progress, in this as well as in other directions, that nowadays one can venture boldly to say that even the cabala of the Bible deserves more study than it has received. It has been dismissed almost universally as the vainest and most unproductive of literary follies. All educated men of evenly balanced minds were virtually in agreement in their view that there was not and could not be any magic power or significance in gematria or the counting of a name or text, and all people who took interest in such puerile fancies were either stupidly superstitious or grossly ignorant in their conceptions of what true knowledge was.

As so often happens in the matter of literary judgments, and other judgments as well, these cultivated and judicious men were both right and wrong. They were right according to the lights and knowledge of their age, and their judgment was sane according to the evidence before them. But there was a great deal of evidence not before them, which has since come to light and made their opinion, which was once relatively right, become now relatively wrong.

In days gone by, no one thought of looking upon a Primitive Christian in the light of an initiate with mysterious knowledge carefully conveyed and concealed. To all Churchmen, High or Low, Primitive Christians became "wise unto salvation" by about the same or somewhat similar means as Primitive Methodists become converted men nowadays. This was the current idea—true enough in a certain sense, of course, but withal very misleading, for how much of importance was overlooked or unknown!

The various complicated ways in which the earliest Christianity was brought into connection with the Greek, Mithraic, and other mysteries, is almost a study of the last half-century, and has a by no means unimportant connection with mystic names and numbers. And the same may be said of the Essenes, the Neo-Pythagoreans, and all the many embryonic forms of Gnosticism, which were, like microbes, "in the air," naturally infecting more or less every religious growth within their sphere of influence, according as the nidus was suitable or not. The disputants of past generations were unaware of most of these things.

And yet the Primitive Christian was an initiate plainly enough, and had a disciplina arcani even as other initiates. But the Christian mysteries had this advantage over other mysteries: there was with them the open door; for behold, the "door was opened in heaven" and on earth. That is to say, Christianity was an initiation of a more universal character than was allowed in the Eleusinian mysteries or any of the various other mystic rites which multiplied to an unusual extent just before and after the Christian era. In Christ Jesus there was no bar of birth, nationality, or even of moral conduct. "Whosoever will, let him come"; "Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free." Sinners, slaves, and outcasts were invited to come freely. Women, too, debarred from the great mysteries of Paganism, were accepted here on equal terms. In Christ Jesus there was neither male nor female.

I believe that this acceptance of the woman—virgin, wife, and widow—on almost equal terms to the rites and ceremonies and religious privileges of the new religion, had more to do with the rapid progress and final triumph of early Christianity than is generally supposed. The great reason is not sufficiently dwelt upon by the critics and historians of the Rise and Progress of our Faith. Women comprise half, or more than half, of the human race, and their susceptibilities to a religion of faith and hope are much stronger and more persistent than those of the sterner sex. Even allowing that with women these feelings are less sceptical and critical than with men, we must not forget that religions rise and advance not by the dry critical faculty so much as by the imaginative enthusiasm of the anima naturaliter pia. Besides, would not a religion of love and peace appeal more to the impulsive woman than to the fierce warrior or the subtle logician?

Many of the early Christians had, no doubt, been initiates, and when converted to the new method of salvation—that Soteria so many were seeking in those days of religious revival—they would readily understand the mystic or cryptic allusions in the writings of the New Testament, especially when written by converted initiates, as the writers of the Epistle to the Colossians and the Apocalypse most probably were.

The mystic numbers of Daniel and the Apocalypse would be no new ground to initiates and deep religious inquirers. The philosophy of the ancients was greatly geometrical. It is a reported dictum of Plato that God Himself $\gamma \epsilon \omega \mu \epsilon \tau \rho \epsilon \hat{i}$, and it was the mark of the wise to understand hierophantic and other mysteries, and to deliver them in turn ($\Pi \alpha \rho \alpha \delta \delta \sigma \iota s$). It was esoteric knowledge not meant for those that were without, and therefore there was a certain concealment to preserve such matters from profane eyes; but it was the duty and privilege of the "wise" within the fold, of those who had "understanding," to "count the number" and possess the secret. Besides the cryptic signs known by tradition to the initiates, there was cryptic astrology as well. Many of the mystic numbers in the Bible are connected with astronomy, the motions of the heavenly bodies, the yearly motion of the sun (as it was then thought) through the constellations, etc.

The signs in the Apocalypse are manifestly taken from the heavenly bodies, and indeed we learn from the first chapter of Genesis that one of the purposes for which these heavenly luminaries were created was to be for "signs," and this purpose was put first in the sacred text. Therefore we should not be too ready to say, as many do, that these remarkable cabalistic coincidences were not originally intended by the writers, but have been extracted from the text by the ingenious fancy and device of men who found what they looked for.

We may admit that ingenious manipulation of words and numbers has sometimes—nay, often—brought out what was never intended, but there is an honest residuum, too clear, too precise, and too startling to be anything but positively indicative of the cryptic cabalism of the Biblical writers. Many of the composers of the sacred books of the Bible, the compilers, too, of the Gospels, and especially the Revelators. such as Daniel and John, would feel bound by the nature of their themes to be cryptic and cabalistic and esoteric. To take one simple instance: "And the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there." My strong opinion is that this is throughout a cryptic statement of an esoteric character, that there is much more in it than appears to the ordinary reader, and that by the words I have italicised, and farther on in the narrative as well, the writer intended to convey to the "wise" some theological or spiritual truth which was widely different from the account of a provincial wedding feast. And I think the same remark will hold good with regard to the herd of swine that ran violently down a steep place into the sea (the deep, the abyss?) and were choked.

It is just because we do not know what the cryptic teaching of such narratives is, that they seem so strange to us in the Bible, and make the faith of many grow cold.

It was ignorance of these things that nearly broke off the engagement between the famous Dr. Bentley, Master of Trinity, and his affianced lady, Miss Joanna Bernard, whom he first met at Bishop Stillingfleet's house, from which latter fact we might infer that she was severely orthodox.

It seems she was much alarmed one day by some expressions her learned lover used with regard to the measurements of the golden image which Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up. They seemed to her to cast a doubt on the authority of the Book of Daniel. Whiston has told us what Bentley's alarming assertion was. The image is described as sixty cubits high, and six cubits broad. "Now," said Bentley, "this is out of all proportion; it ought to have been ten cubits broad at least." This, we are told, "made the good lady weep." It has been supposed that this lovers' difference was amicably arranged on the basis suggested by Whiston—that the sixty cubits included the pedestal. Anyhow, they lived a happy wedded life together for forty years, and considering the Master of Trinity's determined temper and almost lifelong worries, we may well agree with Professor Jebb (Bentley, p. 98) when he says, "Perhaps, if all were known, few women ever went through more in trying, like Mrs. Thrale, to be civil for two."

But what a regrettable incident if forty happy years of married life had really thus been sacrificed, through both parties being ignorant of the mystical and cabalistic meaning of the number 6!

It was the ordinary method in all mysteries for the hierophants or mystagogues to convey hidden truths by means of a more or less obvious fiction. They would thus use a myth, or parable, or significant number, to conceal the inner meaning, and, as an anonymous writer has said very recently, "It has come to pass that the crude and childish lie on the surface is ignorantly believed for the whole truth, instead of being recognised as the mere clue to its inner meaning. All theology is composed in this way, and her twofold utterances must be read with a double mind. Thus, when we read in the Scriptures of the Church, or in the saintly legends, a fiction showing more than ordinary exuberance of fancy, we may be sure that our attention is being specially arrested. When miraculous events are related of the gods, or when they are depicted in marvellous shapes, the author gives us to understand that something uncommon is being conveyed. When singular and unearthly beasts are described such as Behemoth and Leviathan, the unicorn or the phænix, it is intended that we should search deeply into their meaning: for such are some of the artifices by which the ancients at once concealed and explained their hidden mysteries."*

As far as the Old Testament is concerned, it has been supposed that some astronomical science of the Hebrews is mystically concealed under the figures of Noah's Ark, the Tabernacle, the Temple of Solomon, and the Holy Oblation of Ezekiel. In the New Testament it is thought that the Christians added to these the mystical city of the New Jerusalem described in the last two chapters of the Revelation.

It seems clear that Daniel's numbers are in some way astronomical, and the same holds with many of the numbers of the Apocalypse dealing with the consummation of the age, while gematria was evidently a part of the esoteric teaching in the early New Testament days, as appears from the number of the Beast, and from what we read in the Epistle of Barnabas (chap. ix.) concerning the number of Abraham's servants, which was 318: "For scripture says that Abraham circumcised 318 men of his house. But what was the mystery that was made known unto him? Mark first the 18, and next the 300. For the numerical letters of 10 and 18 are IH. And these denote 'IH(ΣΟΥΣ). And because the Cross was that by which we were to find grace, therefore he adds 300; the note of which is T (the figure of his cross). Wherefore by two letters he signified Jesus, and by the third his cross. He knows this who has put the engrafted gift of his doctrine within us. No one has learned a more genuine word from me than this, but I know that ye are worthy of it."

This is ingenious, but the later rabbis have, in a midrash, I think surpassed it. For they, finding that the name of Eliezer, Abraham's steward, was by gematria 318, inferred from this that Eliezer himself stood for the 318 armed men of Abraham's household, and that Abraham got the victory mentioned in the Bible with Eliezer alone, who was equal to all of them, and that he left the rest of them at home.

The early Christian poet Prudentius refers to this number of Abraham's servants in his Psychomachia, and adds that we, too, may be rich in servants, and successful in our conflicts if we only comprehend the mystica figura of the number 318.

The passage has been rather a crux with commentators, who in their expositions have found, as did Mr. Gladstone so often, three courses open to them:—

1. With Rupertus, Pererius, and Antonius Nebrissensis, they might conclude that the Council of Nicæa and its 318 bishops there assembled was the reference intended, and that the Nicene Creed was the mystica figura which should so greatly avail us; being that whereby the great opponent Arius was routed by the 318 bishops, and whereby we should prevail also if we held it fast to the end.

2. The explanation of Barnabas as recorded above.

3. The explanation that VnICa CrVCIs fIgVra was the mystic figure meant by Prudentius, which, according to the value of its Latin numerals was exactly 318—viz., three C's, three V's, and three I's.

I think No. 2 seems the most likely. The date of Prudentius is much too early for any chronogrammatic device such as No. 3, which is therefore out of court. As for the apocalyptical number 666, the amount of time and discussion that has been wasted on it is amazing.

David Thom, a Liverpool minister, composed a large octavo of more than four hundred pages on this number, and discusses many of the solutions very learnedly. Strange to say, he dismissed the most likely number of the numerous list without a remark. We shall see in the appendix how ingeniously our concealed Lutheran cabalist stamped it indelibly on one of the Popes—Leo X. The Popes have always had this bestial mark given them by Protestants, if it could possibly be fixed upon them in one way or another.

But now, surely, we know how wrong and foolish all this defaming and branding of ecclesiastical dignities is. What had the Apocalypse to do with the Popes? The idea seems absurd. The Apocalypse spoke to the initiates who had "understanding." Its concern was mainly with current political events and the wondrous things soon to happen on the earth. Consequently we must not look for the solution of 666 in an ecclesiastical direction. The Popes and the Apocalypse are very far apart. Cæsar and his "Babylon," and the privileges of Roman citizenship (possibly the mark of the Beast in the hand), were the burning questions of that book and age.

There seems a great probability that Christianity was a socialistic movement as well as a religious and moral one, and herein is the explanation of the persecution of the Christians by the Cæsars, good and bad alike, Marcus Aurelius as well as Nero. The wily politicians in high places saw the democratic and socialistic danger; and the peace-loving, brotherly community of watchful, expectant Christians saw their real and greatest enemy.

It was Rome, the second Babylon, the mother of wealth, idolatry, tyranny, and all the abominations of the earth. If the peaceable kingdom of Christ was to be set up, then the cry must first resound through the earth, "Babylon is fallen." The Sibylline books, both Jewish and Christian, point in this direction. Doubtless there were many communistic socialists and initiates among the readers of the Seer of Patmos. To them Christ was Lord, not Cæsar, and that was the ultimate test that brought so many of them to the lions and the flames. Such as they would not be very long in guessing or counting out by gematria that Beast which has puzzled so many generations since.

But my Biblia Cabalistica only touches upon the mystic numbers of the Bible incidentally. Its primary object, as already hinted, is to present to the curious reader a collection of texts from the Bible and Apocrypha, which have been treated cabalistically by ingenious authors, and which are for the most part unknown even to bookworms of considerable research. It runs strictly parallel in its method to my Biblia Anagrammatica, and both deal only with Bible texts throughout, the one great exception being the early Lutheran exposition of 2300, 1290, 1335, and 666, which are numbers rather than texts, and this has been added on account of its rarity and singular ingenuity, and thrown into an appendix with some other singularities connected with the numerical cabala of the Bible.

Now, when did this science or pseudo-science first make its appearance? How old is this gematria, this exposition of words by their numerical value, in which the Talmudic Jews, and other people before them and after them, so much delighted? I do not suppose any precise date can be given at this distance of time, and when the records of Eastern nations which might throw light on the subject are lost, or rather not yet available. For who, after our Babylonian and Egyptian finds, can dare to say we may not yet find further accounts of the rise and influence of this branch of esoteric philosophy?

However, in any case, I believe the cabala was used much earlier than most people think. We must go behind the Jews farther back into the ages to people more civilised than they were, if we wish to meet with the prima stamina of these curious devices. What the Eastern nations understood by the term "wisdom" dealt largely with numbers

Without going too far back into the dim past as the time when "Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians," we may safely say that the Jews, during their captivity in Babylon, would learn the "wisdom" of the Chaldeans, and this was most distinctly numerical and astrological, connected with recurring cycles of stellar motion and times and seasons marked out by the stars and the sun's passage through them. And later on, when through the liberal treatment of the Greek Ptolemies they lived in free intercourse with the philosophers of all schools at Alexandria, the Pythagorean doctrine that number is the active principle and root of the visible world would doubtless be brought to their notice. Indeed, as a matter of fact, we find that very idea was current among them in some of those Biblical writings we call the Apocrypha, which really hailed not from Jerusalem, but from the Alexandrian Judaic school. A good instance is Wisdom xi. 20, where we read: "But Thou hast ordered all things in measure, and number, and weight."

The numerical cabala of the old kind was at its greatest height of favour and influence during the period beginning a century before the introduction of Christianity and ending three centuries after that event—i.e., B.C. 100—A.D. 300, which period would include the later Persian, Chaldean, and Alexandrian precursors of the Gnostics, and the Gnostics themselves, who were, some of them, great cabalists, and more addicted to the art than the contemporary Jew or the Christian mystic who remained orthodox.

However, the authorities, whether Imperial or Pontifical, never looked upon this curious art with favourable eyes. To the Emperors it seemed allied to the art of the "mathematici," a class of men they hated and feared, although they consulted them. To the ecclesiastical authorities it savoured of heresy, Gnosticism, and Judaism. So it gradually fell out of favour, but it remained with the Talmudic Jew who sought after "wisdom," and it burst forth with a new light when the Zohar was found, or rather concocted, in the thirteenth century.

The mediæval Jews, too, we are told on good authority, continued to practise with great glee these old devices of their forefathers. "Another class of Jewish (mediæval) pastimes was of a more intellectual nature. Arithmetical tricks known as gematria were old favourites; perhaps instances of them are not unknown in the Old Testament

(cf. Stade's Zeitschrift, 1896, p. 122). At all events, they were very much fancied in the Middle Ages, and formed the recreation of great rabbinical scholars. The Talmud, for instance, humorously says that a good Jew must drink wine at Purim until he can no longer distinguish between 'Blessed be Mordecai' and 'Cursed be Haman.' The point of the remark was derived from the numerical identity of the Hebrew words forming the two phrases (each = 502)." *

And later on, at the beginning of the eighteenth century, I have found an instance of a Jew using the Biblical cabala in honour of a Christian prince. As this broad-minded Jew made use of the first three verses of Psalm xxi., the attempt appears in its place in the present book, and the pamphlet figures in the bibliography (s.v. 1701, Simon Wolff Brandes). But in these later times of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, it was the converted Christian ex-rabbis who made the greatest public use of the cabala, in every case with a view to convert their brethren. We are told of a cabalist (presumably a Christian) who obtained the name of Jesus (Jod, Schin, Vau) out of the dimensions of the Ark, and again out of Solomon's Temple. And the Jewish rabbi, Theodorus Genuensis, afterwards called Ludovicus Carret (he became a physician), was converted to Christianity by the wonderful cabalistic mysteries he had noticed could be drawn from the triliteral name JSV (in Hebrew). He always declared that the three-headed letter (Schin) in the middle referred to the mystery of the Trinity. W. Schickard, in his work, Bechinath Happeruschin, Tübingen, 1624, pp. 65-102, is my authority, and refers to a work by Rabbi Theodorus, entitled De Visionibus Dei. This I have not met with, but there is a book by J. Faulhaber, which I have seen, entitled Vernunfftigen Creaturen Weissagungen, Augsburg, 1632, where the measurements of a wonderful stag are taken, with the result that the famous prophetical numbers 666, 1260, 1335, and 2300 all come out from the horns, hoofs, and back of the portentous animal. And again, he takes a wonderful fish found on the coast of Denmark with strange characters on it, and from a cunning manipulation of these he brings out once more the Apocalyptic These marvels have always been received with marked numbers.

attention by the uneducated vulgar, which I suppose accounts for their recurrence. We must remember, too, that neither the Jews nor Greeks in ancient times used special and distinct numerals as we do; for with them the letters of the alphabet were their numerals, and therefore the number of a word was much more open to observation and calculation than

The great liking that many of the Talmudic rabbis had for clinching their arguments by means of the numerical cabala is well known to Oriental students. For instance:-

(1) Rav Yehudah, the brother of Rav Salla the Holy, said: "Satan has no permission to accuse any one on the Day of Atonement. How do we know this?" Ramma bar Chamma replied: "Satan by gematria equals 364, therefore on that number of days only has he permission to accuse; but on the Day of Atonement (i.e., the 365th day) he cannot accuse." (Yoma, fol. 20.)

(2) There are 903 sorts of death in the world, for the expression occurs (Psalm lxviii. 20), "Issues of death." The numerical value of "issues" is 903. The hardest of all deaths is by quinsy, and the easiest is by the Divine kiss-of which Moses, Aaron, and Miriam died.

(Berachoth, fol. 8.)

(3) It was said by one of old time, "Blessed is he who submits to a reproach and is silent, for a hundred evils depart from him." Now, strife in Hebrew letters equals 100, which explains the particular form of the aphorism.*

This knowledge of the cabala has always been in high estimation with the bookish Jew, almost until the last century or two, and I have no doubt there are learned cabalists among the conservative Talmudists of Poland and Galicia even now.

The cabala had two distinct branches—the practical and the theoretical. The former dealt with magic, with invocation of spirits, bad and good, by names and charms, and such-like folly of the superstitious imagination. It was naturally most in favour with the lower-class Jew and the uneducated vulgar, and this part of the cabala does not enter into our subject. The latter, or theoretical cabala, was the study of rabbis and literati, and both branches attracted some notice and much odium during the period of the Early Renaissance, when alien and heretical literature were, for the first time, beginning to be freely examined by daring spirits, in spite of the ban of the ecclesiastical power.

That Admirable Crichton of his age, the famous Johannes Picus, Comes de Mirandola, went into these matters at considerable length in some of his treatises, and incurred, in consequence, much abuse from his adversaries in monkish and obscurantist coteries. They displayed their profound ignorance sometimes in a rather amusing manner; a conversation between two of these dunderheads is thus reported by our learned Count: "What is this cabala that they talk about, nowadays?" says one to his fellow. "Oh, don't you know?" says the other. "This cabala is a certain diabolically perfidious man, and that is his name; he has written many things against Christ, and so his followers are called Cabalista."*

Another authority,† some years later, gives us another answer to this self-same question, "What is this cabala?" And here we are told that "She is an old witch thoroughly practised in poisonings and enchantments." In this case it was clearly the practical cabala that the respondent was thinking of.

But all this would be vile and ignorant to the good Talmudic Jew. His account was a very different one. His precious cabala was part of the oral law of God given to Moses on Mount Sinai, during the night when there was no light and no stars ‡ (on account of the cloud, I suppose), and therefore nothing much to be done otherwise.

As for the origin of the modern Latin cabala, we are able to fix it much more definitely. It appears to have come into use first in Germany about the time of the Reformation (1530-50), and afterwards it took a start in Italy, chiefly in the neighbourhood of Piacenza, in the year ^{*} Cum quidam interrogaretur: Quid Cabala esset? respondit: fuisse perfidum quendam hominum et diabolicum qui dicebatur CABALA, et hunc multa contra Christum scripsisse unde sequaces ejus dictos esse Cabalistas.—Picus in Apolog., 116.

1621. These two origins were quite independent of each other, and, indeed, the systems of counting were not the same.

In Germany they began with triangular numbers—that is, the letters were numbered according to arithmetical progression, 1, 3, 6, 10, 15, etc., which when represented by dots are all triangles increasing regularly in size, e.g.—

. etc.

How it came about that this particular kind of gematria was chosen is rather singular. It happened thus: Our first worthy cabalist, who is responsible for the remarkable treatment of the Apocalyptic numbers of Daniel and St. John at the end of the present book, was an ardent Lutheran, and was possessed by the fixed idea that the Beast with the seven heads was one of the Popes, and, for preference, Leo X. Whoever it might be, this much was clear—his number must be 666. So he began to reckon by the simplest cabala, a = 1, b = 2, c = 3, etc., but could get nothing appropriate. He therefore increased his alphabet value by making each letter equal to the sum of all its preceding letters, and found, to his surprise and delight, that many remarkable results came out at once.

"I still remember well," he says in his cabalistical book, "how horribly this final anathema of the Pope's Bulls sounded in my ears: qui contrafecerit, indignationem Dei omnipotentis, etc., noverit se incursurum (Whoever shall act contrary to the tenor of this Bull shall know the wrath falling upon him). What blasphemy, thought I, that a dying miserable man (ellender) should dare to assert that his wrath was the wrath of Almighty God. Here, said I, is one of the heads of the Beast surely. And I wrote down Leo Decimus and Indignatio Dei by my cabala, and they agree and are wonderfully equal, and so I have proceeded in all my reckonings."

The cabala trigonalis thus singularly brought into vogue in Germany held its ground there almost to the exclusion of the simpler cabala for some time, and several at Breslau and elsewhere afterwards followed in his steps, but very far indeed from his height of excellence. The early arithmeticians, especially Boethius, had a great deal more to say about triangular and polygonal numbers than we have, and it was probably from these sources that our cabalist obtained his singular notation.

In Italy we hear nothing of any Latin cabala till nearly a century later, and then, in 1621, a circle of literary ecclesiastics started the fashion on the occasion of the left arm of Blessed Conrad, a famous hermit in his time, being brought from Netina to Piacenza.

A full account is given in the book Anathemata B. Conrado (Placentia, 1621), and we are even told of the first Latin cabala that was made—viz.,

$\begin{smallmatrix} 3 & 13 & 12 & 16 & 1 & 4 & 19 & 17 \\ C & O & N & R & A & D & V & S & = & I & D & E & C & V & S & C & A & E & L & I \\ \end{smallmatrix}$

The dedication of the book is signed by Hieronymus Spadius, probably a relative of Johannes Baptista Spadius, who was a famous writer of anagrams and centones, and an early Latin cabalist as well, as may be seen by some of his Biblical attempts recorded later on in this book.

The Italian cabalists always preferred either the simple cabala:—

or what is called the ordinary cabala:—

$\begin{smallmatrix} 1 & 2 & 3 & 4 & 5 & 6 & 7 & 8 & 9 & 10 & 20 & 30 & 40 & 50 & 60 & 70 & 80 & 90 & 100 & 200 & 300 & 400 & 500 \\ A & B & C & D & E & F & G & H & I & K & L & M & N & O & P & Q & R & S & T & U & X & Y & Z \\ \end{smallmatrix}$

I find no instance of their use of the triangular or polygonal numbers; that was left to the Germans, and was called by them cabala paragrammatica.

Concerning this branch of the subject, Johann Henning wrote an interesting work in 1683, entitled Cabbalologia, and gives several examples composed by himself and others in triangular, square, pentagonal, heptagonal, octagonal, enneagonal, and decagonal numbers. There are no examples founded on Biblical texts, and therefore no extracts appear in the body of the present collection. But as examples of this most difficult kind of cabala, I will give one example from the square numbers and one from the pentagonal.

Besides Henning, there was no German paragrammatist till about thirty years later, when Johann Friederich Riederer, of Augsburg, published a rough list of what he had done in this branch. His paragrammata cabalistica were all in triangular numbers, and in the vernacular mainly. They were fashionable compositions connected with the German courts and upper classes, and originally appeared in such publications as court gazettes and similar journals. His list gave the subjects of 1050 specimens of his art and the Bible texts he chose to illustrate cabalistically, but the complete cabalas are not given. As a rule, Florence Nightingale = Flit on, cheering angel. Horatio Nelson = Honor est a Nilo.

But the difficulty of composing a literal anagram is very much less than is the case with cabala, especially with quadrangular and pentagonal ones. Since the result above is equally as neat and appropriate as the best anagrams can give, we may esteem the above cabala to be very remarkable ones.

^{*} I would call attention to the excellence of this and the following example concerning the son who was in pace. Two of the best and most widely-known literal anagrams are:—

I should say they were not published, but sent privately to friends and patrons interested. However, some few found their way into the gazettes as above mentioned, and I have collected these from several out-of-the-way sources. Their chief art consists in the happy selection of a Biblical passage to illustrate the subject chosen, and the ingenuity displayed in making the cabalistica count up correctly with as little alteration of the text as possible.

His magnum opus, which, as he tells us, cost him the labour of three whole days, was the paragrammata he constructed from Gen. xxxix. 2-33. He took the German pretty well as it came verse by verse, and absolutely made fourteen successive cabalistica out of it, each counting up 11,500, which was the number of a short account of Joseph which he took for his programma.

Riederer's preface is interesting for its simple-minded rambling account of his hobby, and how he defended it. He tells us that in 1714 he wished to send a little literary congratulation to a well-known professor at Altdorf, and at that time had not so much as heard what a paragramma was. However, while turning over the leaves of that amusing collection of literary trifles, Das A.B.C. cum notis variorum, 1703-8, he came across a wedding congratulation to a certain Matthew Walther and his bride, wherein their names were cleverly paragrammatised from the first two verses of Psalm xx.: "The Lord hear thee in the day of trouble; the Name of the God of Jacob defend thee; send thee help from the sanctuary, and strengthen thee out of Zion." This he thought most apropos. Possibly he remembered his own "day of trouble," and how he longed to be "strengthened" at the altar and the wedding festivals and through the honeymoon. Anyhow, it set him to work on his Bible, and in a few hours he produced an attempt which he considered very satisfactory. By practice he soon became a quicker workman, and sometimes, so he tells us, he made ten, twelve, or even fifteen cabalistica in a day.

The critics and learned heads laughed at his work, and even the ordinary man in the street looked down upon it as a puerile waste of time, but he felt he could afford to despise their scorn, and he gives the following reasons:—

"I. If a man has a private hobby of his own which does no harm to any one, and pleasantly occupies his own time, why need he care for the sneers of the unsympathetic?

"2. Besides this, the great majority of these carping critics could not do the thing half so well or so easily as he could, for his commercial education and practice had made him unusually quick at figures. So he retorts upon them the old fable of the Fox and the Grapes—'They call the grapes green and sour because they cannot reach unto them.'

"3. They say it is a waste of time. But is this so, really? Let some of my fellow-citizens and despisers ask themselves what they will, perforce, have to answer without equivocation in that day when the searching question is put, 'How hast thou put thy talent to use?' Will not many have to say in that day, 'Lord! I have spent much time in drinking and carousing, and often by excess I have been as it were a fool and a madman. Lord! I have spent whole nights over cards and gambling. Lord! I have wasted my time in lewd company, talking and smoking, and even worse than that, often until the break of day.'

"But," says our Augsburg merchant, "whatever else I may have to confess before the great Searcher of Hearts, I can freely and gladly confess this: 'Lord! many are the wakeful nights I have passed, and when sleep came not, then did I arise and make my cabala. Lord! I have so learned Thy Bible by the searching out of fitting texts, that my soul hath oft been quickened therewith. Lord! for Thy loving-kindness and Thy mercy's sake, count these my greatest sins."

There is a direct simplicity and genuineness here which must needs make us like the man. Moreover, he spoke well of our countrywomen, for in his catalogued paragrammata he takes the text Job xlii. 15 for what he has to say cabalistically about the English fair ones, and that is: "And in all lands were no women found so fair." With such a foundation we should like to be able to see the edifice he raised to their honour, but unfortunately his catalogue of 1050 paragrammata only contains the suitable texts he chose and the subject, but not the resulting cabala, except in two instances, where he uses metrical hymns instead of Bible texts.

Our Augsburg citizen was evidently very conscientious and scrupulous as to the other sex. He does not tell us so, but it comes out when he has to deal cabalistically with fair and frail ones, as Lais and others. The Apocrypha is all he will allow to such, and then only in words of shame and reproach—e.g., for Lais he chose Sirach xxiii. 26: "She shall leave her memory to be cursed, and her reproach shall not be blotted out" (6237). And even Madame de Maintenon had to take a back seat with I Esdras iv. 30, 31: "And taking the crown from the king's head and setting it upon her own head, she also struck the king with her left hand. And yet for all this the king gaped and gazed upon her with open mouth; if she laughed upon him he laughed also; but if she took any displeasure at him, the king was fain to flatter, that she might be reconciled to him again" (16,924). This is a clever selection, no doubt, but nothing that Riederer did can compare for difficulty and ingenuity with the Latin cabalistic soliloquies of the Capucin, Josephus Mazza de Castanea, who followed the Italian school and adhered to the ordinary numerical gematria in use in his day.

The number of authors who have dealt with this Biblical cabala is very small, as will appear by the short bibliography appended. It must not, however, be supposed that these names complete the list of cabalists. There are several exponents of this curious art who do not appear in my book at all, because they have never dealt specially with any Biblical text, and therefore have no claim to be included in the collection.

For instance, there is Joannes Ignatius Summa de Wlatislaw, who between 1684 and 1699 wrote six Latin works, some almost entirely cabalistical, and what is more, they were metrical as well. A good cabala is not easy to compose in any case, but when it has to be confined in the bonds of metre as well, it becomes doubly difficult.

Then there is a cabalistic life of Christ, written throughout in Latin leonine hexameters, each one counting up exactly 1706, which was the year it was written and published. It extends to 176 lines, and takes in all the principal events of our Saviour's life in due order. It was written by a Belgian village pastor who had been a university professor, and is, I should say, the most laborious and difficult work of the kind ever written. I only know of one copy, and have sought in vain for many years to procure another for my collection. However, I made a transcript when I first came across the book.

Then there is Benedictus Rocca, who in 1631, when there was a general assembly at Padua of all the abbots and high dignitaries connected with the famous Benedictine monastery of Monte Cassino, conceived the curious fancy that he would try to turn the name of every member of the assembly into an appropriate metrical cabala. He had only three days left before the event when the idea struck him, and so, as he tells us, he had to work very hard, or in his own rhetorical language: Multiplici numerorum catena constricto per asperiora Pindi cacumina triduo mihi fuit incedendum. However, the task was completed in time and published, and the sixty-four members of the council had each and all their laudatory cabala—an hexameter in every case, and generally very neat and appropriate—e.g.:

Pater Domnus Angelus è Bononia Casinensis Regii Abbas.	439
CAB. SIMPLEX.
Hinc Patriam, Nomenque dedit Sors præscia morum.	439
Another, perhaps even better—
Pater Domnus Leander à Placentia Abbas Casinensis.	382
CAB. SIMPLEX.
Purior Aoniis natat iste Leander in undis.	382

These three writers are the best of the "outsiders," but some very good cabalistica often occur on Flemish and German broadsheets. Among the Jesuits, Caspar Pfliger, of the Bohemian Province, and among the Hungarian Piarists, Benedictus ab Annunciatione B.V.M., respectively distinguished themselves; and as late as the year 1767 an anonymous poet belonging to the abbey of Seligenstadt published a folio pamphlet (penes me) in honour of the Archbishop of Mentz, where eight chrono-cabalistica and 146 cabalistica, all metrical (hexameters), are employed to ring the changes in the peals of praise therein offered—each hexameter counting 1763, the year of the Archbishop's anniversary.

Finally, we must remember one great distinction between the old esoteric cabala and the new Latin cabalistica of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. These latter were written by ingenious religious men to fill up their spare time, or to devote it to the Virgin, as did San Juan y Bernedo; and with one exception there is no thought or claim for inspiration or esoteric teaching, or even "wisdom." They were tours de force simply. The one exception was our friend the Lutheran expositor mentioned before, and who has a place of honour in the appendix.

Surely all cabalists, and, indeed, all persons who take even the slightest interest in the subject, must admit that here in this Lutheran tour de force is a most remarkable specimen of the mystic art. The cabalistica are all without a single exception most clear, significant, and appropriate, and we must remember that our author had no predecessors in this particular cabala with triangular numbers. He was the first who used this particular arithmetical progression for cabalistic purposes, and I think it may be said that he raised it, as did many of the earliest printers, to its highest perfection at one bound. No one who came after him could get anywhere near him in the admirable simplicity, continuity, and aptness of his cabalistic exposition of the Biblical number. It is evidently the most remarkable specimen of this particular device in all literature, and the longest. His treatment of Daniel's numbers, 1290 and 1335, which are taken together, is also very good and must rank as a good second.

This book is rare, and like the great majority of books cited here, is not in the British Museum, or Bodleian, or any English library that I know of. The author's name I have for the present withheld advisedly, as I wished to give my readers a little trial of cabalistic skill for their leisure moments. I found out, quite by a chance trial, that the correct name and title of the author is contained in the three words I have put in capitals in the fourth line from the end of his 2300 exposition, viz., Michael filius dei, who was the one who should rise up as God's witness and revelator in the last days. Our author makes no reference whatever to himself in connection with the above, but I fully believe that he knew that he was thus cabalistically numbered and marked out as Michael filius dei, and believed that God would reveal, and was revealing, His last secrets through His humble and devoted servant and spiritual son.

VETUS TESTAMENTUM CABALISTICUM

VETUS TESTAMENTUM CABALISTICUM

GEN. i. 2, 3.

"And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. And God said, Let there be light: and there was light."

Per gematriam, all the Hebrew letters in the above count up to 3963 if the last sentence, "Let there be light: and there was light," be omitted. Now Elchanon Paulus, the converted Jew, makes a great Christian cabalistic proof out of this in the following manner:—

The Jewish mystical expounders took the verse to mean that in the period before the Mosaic dispensation all was without form and void, and that even during the next period, when Israel was under the Law, there was darkness, though the Spirit of God was with them, and that it would not be till the third period or dispensation should come—viz., the times of the Messiah—that there should be light.

So the cabalistic number 3963 shows, says Paulus, how long the world should wait for the coming of the Messiah.

But what does the last sentence teach us? What says the cabala?

Now, "Let there be light: and there was light," in Hebrew counts up to 470, which is the very number of the Hebrew sentence, "My Son, the Messiah, shall be born."

And so the Scripture seems to indicate clearly by this cabala that about the year of the world 3963, God would send His Son, the Messiah, to be born as the Light of the World.

This is undeniably a neat piece of work, and this method of hoisting the Jews with their own petard was an ingenious, happy thought, and proved effective in converting several Rabbis and learned Jews when the ordinary Christian propagandist arguments would have been of no avail. The conversion of a Jew, especially a learned one, was thought much more of in those days than at present, and this was the case in England as well as abroad. There would be a public baptism, a great concourse to hear the sermon, and there would be very often a goodly sized pamphlet describing the antecedents and conversion of the baptised Jew. Several such have come down to us, and are preserved in the British Museum and elsewhere.

My copy of Elchanon Paulus originally belonged to the Jesuits of Vienna, and has been carefully annotated. The Jesuits and the learned world generally were always ready to help and befriend a learned Jew who had accepted Christ. Indeed, Polanco, the literary manager and editor of Ignatius Loyola's writings, was a Neo-Christian Jew, and a great friend of the Basque saint.

* This German Scriptural cabala trigonalis obtained considerable credit and applause at Vienna when it was first circulated in 1714, and many copies were afterwards printed. There was a great desire among all the subjects of Charles VI. that the Emperor should have male progeny to maintain the succession to the throne; and when shortly afterwards the Empress Elizabeth bore a son to the Emperor, this prophetical cabala was still more admired, as well as the one from Luc. i. 15 on the Emperor, which is quoted farther on in its place. This prophecy had the merit of fulfilment, which was more than a very good and famous anagram by a Jesuit succeeded in obtaining. The anagram was "Carolus Sextus Imperator = Uxor pariet tres masculos," which was certainly neat and deserved success, though it was unable to command it. The author of our Biblical cabala was J. F. Riederer, a merchant-poet of Nuremberg, who was a very prolific cabalist, as appears in the Bibliography.

3. For thou preventest him with the blessings of goodness: thou settest a crown of pure gold on his head.

These verses were used in 1701 by a licensed or protected Jew (Schutz-Jude) in addressing a curious cabalistical congratulation to Frederick of Prussia, when he changed his title of Elector for that of King.

From the first verse he takes the Hebrew word for king (Meleck). This counts up as 90. He then shows that the Jewish word for Churfürst, or Elector, also equals 90, and so gets a double application of the verse.

^{*} It was this wedding cabala that first induced Riederer to try his hand in the art (see Introduction).

From these calculations he brings out many flattering predictions, and finishes by obtaining from the first word of the title of the Psalm in Hebrew, Johann Sigismund; from the first and second words, Georg Wilhelm; and from the first three words, Wilhelm der Grosse.

Daniel Ernst Jablonski, the court preacher, wrote a pamphlet depreciating this cabalistic attempt, and compared it unfavourably with chronograms, quoting one of the latter—FrIDerICh I. J. B. Spadius, De F. Sacrato, S.R.E. Card.

These cabalistic devices came into fashion in Italy about 1620. The name given to them was χρησμοὶ ἰσόψηφοι.

The above is a most ingenious one in its selection of Biblical texts all counting up the same number, and that number (540) the number of a man, the very cardinal to whose honour the work containing this cabala was dedicated and composed, and must have cost its author much time and trouble, but as to tours de force, J. B. Spadius was capable de tout; he made anagrams of several hexameter lines in length, all pure centos from Virgil.

Elchanon Paulus here also makes use of Notaricon, the cabala of initials and finals. Taking the consecutive initials of the fifteen Hebrew words which are contained in Isa. xi. 10, he gets: Ke ba Jeschua hagoel am, which he renders "Then comes Jesus, the Redeemer of the Nations." Taking the finals, he gets: Im sod hod schemimiriom—i.e., "That is the mystery of the honour which shall come to Mary."

N.B.—I give Elchanon's own transliteration of the Hebrew in all the instances I quote. I believe that throughout his book his gematria or counting up is accurate, but he occasionally indulges in the licence

* This appropriate numerical anagram refers to a famous incident in the war against the Turks (1683). The hero of the cabala, a Genoese of noble birth, having command of a single ship only, fell in with a fleet of forty-six Turkish triremes. He fought obstinately against capture, and eventually escaped with his ship, although he was badly wounded, and had his left hand struck off in the fight. See another on him, Baruch iii. 5.

The cabala is the simple one—a = 1; b = 2; . . . z = 23.

These six Scriptural cabalistica had their origin from the following historical event:—

On April 13th, 1716, there was born to the Emperor Charles VI. and his Consort, Elisabeth Christina, a long-desired son, who was baptised as Leopoldus Joannes Josephus Antonius Franciscus de Paula Hermenegildus Rudolphus Ignatius Balthasar.

The birth of this heir to the Imperial Throne brought forth acclamations from all quarters, and the number of anagrams, chronograms, and cabalistica made in honour of the happy event is remarkably large.

I have a large folio volume of several hundred pages, published at Prague in 1716, containing the laudatory contributions of the Jesuits of the Province of Bohemia alone. Here there are 593 chronograms of the year of birth (1716), and various cabalistica and anagrams besides. And there are several other similar productions. But in spite of all the good omens and hopes, the infant died on November 4th in the same year (1716), or, as it was neatly expressed chronogrammatically—

* The prolonged accumulation of titles is not uncommon in either literal or numerical anagrams, but we seldom meet such an enormous specimen as the above. However, in 1705, G. Gothofredus produced a pure literal anagram of somewhat similar length on the same king. I quote it in text (although non-Biblical) for the purpose of comparison. Which of the two would take the longer time to compose, I can hardly say; I think the literal anagram, but both are unique of their kind.

Prose anagrams of such a length as 567 letters are very seldom met with. I only know four that surpass the above in length and ingenuity. One of the best, though not quite the longest, is the prose anagram of 1072 letters made out of Psalm xc., and addressed to the Emperor Leopold in 1684. This, being a Biblical anagram, will appear in my Biblia Anagrammatica. But the greatest anagrammatic curios are the metrical ones, which are very difficult to compose. I am acquainted with fifteen of these, all having more that six hundred letters. Some are written in musical monkish metres of nearly forty lines, and one (facile princeps) runs to the extraordinary length of 132 hexameter and pentameter lines, and contains 4419 letters. It is Casimir's hymn, Omni die, die Marie, finely turned into classic elegiacs. It is by a Jesuit of Prague, and was written c. 1672. There is a copy of the book containing it to be seen at the Prague University Library, but nowhere else, as far as I know. I transcribed it when at Prague some years ago, and shall place it in an anagrammatic Breviary if I get the opportunity of arranging and printing what I have.

NOVUM TESTAMENTUM CABALISTICUM

NOVUM TESTAMENTUM CABALISTICUM

My New Testament collection begins with a long cabalistic soliloquy of the Virgin Mary on the words of the angel in Joseph's dream

(Matt. ii. 13), "Flee into Egypt."

It comes from the remarkable book of Josephus Mazza, the laborious Capucin, a work so rare that I know of no other copies in England but my own. He uses the Vulgate for the texts of the soliloquies, and other texts will be found further on in St. Luke and St. John. Each soliloquy of the Virgin contains sixty-three cabala, that being her supposed age when she died. The wording is generally very appropriate, and the labour entailed in making such excellent cabalistic lines must have been enormous.

This and the cabala of Matt. xxvi. 20 date from a little before 1621, and are the earliest specimens of the Biblical anagramma numericum I have met with. They are taken from a collection of anagrams and other literary devices composed in honour of the left arm of the above saint, when it was brought as a relic to his native town of Placentia (Piacenza) in 1620.

Another numerical literary device, called supputatio, gives the circumstances and exact date thus:—

These supputationes soon fell out of fashion, and hardly went beyond the circle of the literary dilettanti round about Piacenza, which included J. B. Spadius, Hieronymus Spadius, and Josephus Folianus, of Modena by birth, but a citizen of Piacenza. H. Spadius edited the collection, and J. Folianus gave a good synopsis of the cabalistic artifices and how they came into vogue.

The above was the only Scriptural one, and the text was slightly changed to include the year 1743. This and the following example are the only two I have met with on this famous text. * This was fulfilled by the Empress Elizabeth Christina in 1715, and the Europaische Fama, No. 177, compliments Riederer on his vaticination and (see Gen. xxviii. 3, 4) quotes another he had made.

† What I am going to remark upon this most excellent specimen of the cabalistic art will, I think, on the first reading of it, appear absolutely incredible and impossible. For Ave Templum Sanctissime Triadis is certainly such an extremely ingenious and appropriate cabalistic interpretation of the words of the Angel in Luke i. 28, that those readers who have come so far as this in my book, and have realised the difficulties that have to be met in composing a really good and suitable cabalisticon on Biblical texts, will no doubt agree that here we have one hard to beat, or even match. Moreover, as it stands alone on the right hand or cabalistical column of this Bible, this would seem an additional reason for supposing it had no fellows or equals, or even inferiors.

What will be thought when I assert that I could easily from my own shelves of rarities produce nine or ten thousand other examples, most of them equally good, and some certainly better, and all accurately counting up the required number of the text in the same true cabalistical way—i.e., per cabalam ordinariam, as the example in my text. Nay, I could bring nearly five hundred examples in Italian as well; and this is the only text in the whole Bible to which such remarks are applicable.

The explanation of all this is simple enough when we hear it. These first six words of the Angelical Salutation have always been special favourites with the anagram makers, ever since Joannes Baptista Agnensis, the blind dependent of Cardinal Julius Rospigliosus, sent forth his first hundred in 1661, which were so much admired. Before he died, he made over a thousand, all pure and appropriate; and more marvellous still, a Pole, in 1702, sent forth a folio containing three thousand anagrams, all in the elegiac metre, and with other men's attempts my shelves contain nearly ten thousand specimens, all different!

Now, although the composition of an anagram is worked out in a way very different from the arithmetical process necessary for a good example of cabalistic art, still, when the anagram is completed, and the full number of letters appropriately used, if we count up the letters by any cabalistical progression we like to use, we get the same numerical result as would be obtained by counting up by the same cabalistical progression previously used the letters of the programma, from which the anagramma was derived.

Thus in the way of numeration all these anagrams are the cabalistica of the original programma, and consequently in the present instance of Luc. i. 28, they are cabalistica of that text, although not made with that intention. But not one of the ten thousand anagrams was made by the arithmetical process which brought forth Ave Templum Sanctissimæ Triadis, for that is a cabalisticon without being an anagram, and no variation of the letters as they stand could ever make it an anagram. It was produced by the arithmetical-cabalistic process, and stands alone (as far as I know) against the myriad host which have been evolved out of this one text. I have found a few on portions of the Salutation, as above.

CABALISTIC CURIOS, SCRIPTURAL, PATRISTIC, AND LUTHERAN

THE FISHES DRAWN TO LAND BY SIMON PETER.

This odd number has been much discussed both theologically and cabalistically. The theological question was somewhat settled by the great authority of St. Augustine and other Fathers long ago.

They saw in 153 a proof of the fact that the number of the elect is fixed and pre-ordained.

No large indefinite number is given to us in the miracle, but a small certain and particular one.

The cabalistical solution of this has been often attempted, and many fantastic and obviously absurd solutions have been offered. Lately, however, more reasonable views seem coming to the front, and some progress is being made in a more likely direction. People who are open to reason and conviction will not be so ready now to pronounce unreservedly that the Biblical cabala is utter nonsense, or on a par with Donnelly's cryptogram.

The assumption is that 153 is cabalistically the number of the Sons of God.

This expression, "Sons of God" (Beni ha-Elohim), occurs several times in Scripture, and per gematriam it counts up 153. In Greek the expression exhibits in another form the same phenomena, the gematria being 3213 or $3 \times 7 \times 153$.

In Job ii. I is this remarkable cabala, Beni ha-Elohim, with Satan among them, which counts up altogether 1989, and the two factors of this are 153 and 13, 1989 = 13 × 153, 13 being the mark of the adversary.

In Rom. viii. 17 we have συνκληρονόμοι (joint heirs) = 1071 =

 7×153 ; also κτίσις θεοῦ (the creation of God) = 1224 = 8 × 153.

In the records of the miracle itself there are some remarkable cabalistic coincidences.

The word for fishes is $i\chi\theta\dot{\nu}\epsilon\varsigma = 1224 = 8 \times 153$, and the words for the net are $\tau\dot{o}$ $\delta\dot{\iota}\kappa\tau\nu\sigma\nu$, which also by gematria = $1224 = 8 \times 153$, both rightly numbers of perfection and regeneration, for the net is unbroken, and carries the precious freight from the "right side" of the ship safely to the shore, and "not one is lost." Moreover, this word $i\chi\theta\dot{\nu}\epsilon\varsigma$ (fishes) is exactly value for the same 1224 in the name of Abram, to whose seed, through Ephraim and Manasses, the promise was made that they should increase as fishes do increase.

Thus there is established a remarkable numerical connection between the seed of the patriarch and God's chosen people, whether we consider them metaphorically as fishes or as the actual people whom God through

His prophet addresses as "My people, the house of Israel."

We read in Ezekiel xxxiv. 30, "Thus shall they know that I the Lord their God am with them, and that they, even the house of Israel, are my people, saith the Lord God." And the Greek words "house of Israel, My people" = 1530 = 10 × 153, where we see the Ten Tribes marked out.

Also "Mary and Jesus," that is, the woman and her seed = 1071 = 7 × 153; and "the seed of Jacob" in Hebrew = 459 = 3 × 153. And when the net was drawn to land Jesus strictly enjoined Peter to "Feed my sheep," a term used throughout the Bible to designate God's people, the house of Israel.

There is another way in which this peculiar number 153 has been regarded, and is perhaps worth considering here.

The division of the year into 7 months for the "Seed," and 5 months for the "Fish," as types of the Resurrection, both as found in the Gospels and in the history of Noah and the Flood, is distinctly marked out in the Divine system of number. 153 is the number of the fishes in John xxi. 11, and 207 is the number of days that formed the Jewish ritual, the seed-ripening period. The sum of these two numbers is 360, the number of the year. The division of the number 360 at the Flood is, it is true, slightly different; for there is 150 days for the fish period, leaving 210 for the period when the sun is triumphant.

But in either case there are 5 signs for the one period and 7 for the other. Perhaps the idea is to show not only the division into 7 signs and 5, but to bring out that 3 day-and-nights, nychthemera, at the Vernal Equinox, occupy a peculiar position, being the period that links the "Fish" period on to the "Seed" period, the cross of the ecliptic and equator occurring at the 14th to 17th Nisan, when the Ark, ceasing to float, rested.*

Hengstenberg found in this number the fulness of the Gentiles indicated according to 2 Chron. ii. 17, where Solomon reckons the strangers in Israel at 153,600. They had toiled all night on unproductive toil in Israel, and now the Light of Day shall begin to rise and spread o'er all the earth, and the Gentiles shall walk in it.

Dr. Egli (Theol. Jahr., 1854, p. 135) finds the number in Simon

Peter's name, i.e., Shimeon Jonah = 153.

153 is a remarkable number in many ways. $153 = 1^3 + 5^3 + 3^3 = 153$ the sum of its separate cubes; $153 = 17 \times 3^2$; also 153 = 1 + 2 + 15

3 + 4 · · · + 17, the sum of the first 17 numbers.

Now, 17 is the seventh of the series of prime numbers, 1, 3, 5, 7, 11, 13, 17, etc., and 13 is the sixth of the same series. Hence, while 17 is connected with 7, 13 is connected with 6. Now 7 is admitted on all hands to be Biblically significant of spiritual perfection, and 6 is the number Biblically significant of imperfection, labour, and opposition, and as we know how remarkably 13 is indicated as the number of opposition in the Bible, we may take it that 17 represents spiritual perfection, and, moreover, the fact of its being a combination of 7 + 10, the numbers of spiritual perfection, helps our assumption.

^{*} The Computation of 666 (London, 1891, 8vo), at p. 244. For further exposition see chap. vi., "The Fish and the Seed of Corn."

Petrus Bungus, who wrote in the sixteenth century a ponderous work on numbers, has a few good remarks on 153. He endeavours, as his title-page expresses it, to show a wondrous and unceasing agreement between the old Pythagorean principle of mystic numbers and the principle of numeration used frequently in the Holy Scriptures. Necessarily there is much that is pure fancy in so elaborate a work, but he had carefully gone to all the original sources open to him at the time, and so his book is not without a certain value still. He says that the 153 fishes signify the whole multitude of the elect who shall be on the right hand of the Throne on the Day of Judgment.

It was shortly after our Lord's Resurrection that the wonderful draught of fishes is related, and therein was a reference to the resurrection to a new and eternal life for all who were safely brought "out of the deep" into the ship or ark of the Church which floats at peace on the troubled and rising waters. The net was cast on the right side of the ship; therefore there were no reprobate sinners taken in the net, for all these were on the left side. The net was not broken; heresy and schism had not yet done damage. As for 153, it is the trigonal number of 17, and 17 represents the man complete in Christ, who has been purified like silver seven times from his native dross, and has received his denarius, i.e., his 10 and his 7.

"And do you wish to know yet further," he adds, "why the whole number of the saints is denoted by 17? Then take this reason as well. What is the peculiar number of the Law of Moses? How many are the Commandments? Are they not 10? But the Law, if it be not helped by Grace, leaves men in their trespasses and sins, and is the Letter only. And so the Apostle pointedly says, The Letter killeth, but the Spirit maketh alive."

The result therefore is, that we must add the Spirit to the Letter, and perform the precepts of the Law in and through the Grace of our Saviour. This is adding 7 to 10 cabalistically, and the number of the perfect Christian (17) comes out, and, rising per cab. trigonalem 1 + 2 + 3 . . . 17 to 153, represents the whole Church of the Elect and Perfect, which is the Body of Christ.*

6 AND 666

6 may be considered cabalistically a 7 - 1—i.e., man's coming short of spiritual perfection.

It has to do with MAN, as examination of many instances of its use seem convincingly to show. It is the human number, the number of Man, destitute of God.

Man was created on the 6th day; 6 days were appointed for him to labour, and the seventh day for spiritual rest with God.

Curiously enough, 6 seems stamped on much that has to do with human labour—it is stamped on his measures, so to speak—

I foot =
$$12 = 2 \times 6$$ inches,
I yard = $36 = 6 \times 6$ or 6^2 inches,

and on his time-

I day = 24 = 4×6 hours, I year = 12 = 2×6 months,

I hour = $60 = 10 \times 6$ minutes = $100 \times 6 \times 6$ seconds.

If 6 cabalistically represents Man without God, we may well expect that 666, or the threefold 6, should represent still more essentially the same idea, and so we find it. The Edomites were essentially aliens from God and enemies of Israel, and the Biblical word for them is HADVMIM, and this word sums up into 666.

To mega therion—" the great beast "—also counts up 666.
The words antitheos esti—" he is Antigod "—also equal 666.

Again, there is one word in the New Testament (Acts xix. 25) which occurs only once—viz., euporia, meaning wealth, the ill-gotten gains of Demetrius the shrine-maker, and it numbers 666, and when we remember the many denunciations in the New Testament against riches, this seems a remarkable coincidence. And what is still more remarkable is that of the 3125 different nouns which the New Testament contains, this is the only one which counts up 666. In the Old Testament, too, there is a singular parallel, for in I Kings x. 14 we read: "Now the weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year was six hundred threescore and six talents of gold."

Indeed, wherever in Scripture this bestial number appears alone, the sense is usually a sinister one. For instance, in that remarkable passage where our Lord's disciples express fear of shipwreck, the word is (Matt. viii. 25), "Lord, save us; we perish $(a\pi o\lambda \lambda i\mu \epsilon \theta a)$," and this word equals 666, and probably is the only verb in the New Testament which exactly fits the number.

Then the slave or concubine offspring of Leah and Rachel also make up each 666, per gematriam Hebraicam, thus:-

Leah	36	Bilhah	42
Zilpah	I 2 2	Dan	54
Gad	7	Naphtali	570
Asher	501
	666		666

The apostate Ham, if reckoned with his father Noah, becomes 666, while Noah and his two other sons, Shem and Japhet (omitting Ham), become 888, the number of the name of Jesus.

Again, Shechem Ben Hamor, who in his seduction of Dinah is said to prefigure the seduction of Israel by the Antichrist, counts up 666 in the most characteristic way, for Shechem gives 360, and Ben Hamor 306, the same division as in Nero Cæsar.

Again, there are three men who stand out in Scripture as avowed enemies of God and His people. Each is branded with this number 6.

1. Goliath, whose height was 6 cubits, and he had 6 pieces of armour, and his spear's head weighed 600 shekels of iron.

2. Nebuchadnezzar, whose "image," which he set up, was 60 cubits high, and 6 cubits broad (Dan. iii. 1), and which was worshipped when the music was heard from 6 specified instruments. Moreover, the words in Dan. iii. 1 equal by gematria 4662, which has the significant factors 7 × 666.

3. Antichrist, whose number is 666.

There are further significant peculiarities in 666, for besides its three sixes, it is the sum of the first 36 (i.e., 6×6) numbers—viz., 1+2+3 up to 36, and also the sum of the only 6 numerical letters which the Romans used, as thus appears:—

$$D = 500$$

2. $C = 100$
3. $L = 50$
4. $X = 10$
5. $V = 5$
6. $I = 1$

1000 was represented by CIO, and later by M.

I will not burden my pages with the names of those many persons of both great and small reputations who have been marked by curious calculators with the bestial number of the Apocalypse. Personally, I am inclined to accept the very strong evidence that points to Nero Cæsar, but there are other remarkably good conjectures which cannot be summarily put out of court. Different minds see evidence of this peculiar sort in very different lights, and as I have already remarked, the author * who has devoted the most time and the biggest book to the investigation of the hidden name passes by almost unnoticed that solution which historically and cabalistically seems to me the most ingenious and probable. So I leave this vexed question and present two rare and curious cabalistical exercises on 666—one from our early Lutheran friend, whom I have mentioned elsewhere, and the other from a mystical French writer of much more recent date.

This is a fairly strong cabalistic marking out of Pope Leo Decimus as the "Beast," but our author goes further yet, and uses the mystic numbers of Daniel and St. John in such a way as to leave no doubt, for, as he says, no other Pope that ever lived could be so clearly marked:—

666 gives Id Bestia Leo.

1260 ,, Et idem Leo, Leo Decimus.

1290 , Iste idem Leo Decimus.

1335 , Leo, Leo Papa, Leo Decimus.

666 and 1260 taken together give Papa Leo Decimus, Papa Leo Decimus.

1290 and 1335 give Et idem Papa Leo Decimus, Antichristus.

This certainly reads well, and seems without a flaw—straightforward and clear enough, anyhow. But he has more behind.

In Apoc. xvii. 5 we read of the woman sitting on the scarlet-coloured beast, and are told "upon her forehead was a name written: MYSTERY, BABYLON THE GREAT"—i.e., in the Latin—

Mysterium in fronte Babylon Magna, and this per cabalam trigonalem equals

Nomen Papatus in fronte Leo Decimus.

But according to our author's theory, Leo X, was only one head of the Beast, for (Apoc. xvii. 10) there are seven heads and seven kings or Popes. So he goes to St. John again, and takes 666 + 666 + 1260 + 1260, which give by the same cabala used throughout:—

Fit Papa Adrianus Sextus, Papa Clemens Septimus (the next two Popes); then 666 + 66 + 6 + 1290 + 1335 give—the last being alive when our author wrote, and so it began to look as if the times of the end were near. But we have much more of these Popes in the great cabalistic exposition of 1290 + 1335, Daniel's "last days"; the cabalistic number 2625.

8 AND 888

8 cabalistically considered was 7 + 1; something added to spiritual completeness, which is 7. Hence 8 is specially associated with Resurrection and Regeneration, and the beginning of a new era or order.

Ex.—Noah was the eighth person (2 Peter ii. 5) who was found in the ark to commence with a new order of things in a new birth, and 8 souls came out with him.

Circumcision on the 8th day, a sign of a new order or creation.

Christ rose from the dead on the first day of the week, which was, of course, the eighth day as well.

* Gog = le christianisme.

† Magog = le paganisme (Ézéch. xxxviii.). ‡ Il paraît actuellement à Astracan, Un Journal de Musique asiatique, par le Professeur de Musique Dobrowsky. Le Diable à Quatre déchu du privilège d'avoir le nombre 666 dans les lettres de son nom, reconnaît Dobrowsky pour son doyen et pour grand lama.—(Moneuq, 10 août, 1824, Soubira.)

The Feast of Tabernacles lasted 8 days, and is connected by John i. 14 with the Incarnation, for it is written: "The Word was made Flesh and dwelt among us," and dwelt is in the original Greek ἐσκήνωσεν—i.e., "tabernacled" among us.

It may well be called (as it has been) the Dominical Number, for it occurs constantly in connection with our Lord. It is the number of His name IH $\Sigma O \Upsilon \Sigma = 888$, and it comes in a curious way into His other names as well-> Χριστός, Christ $= 1480 = 8 \times 185.$ $K\dot{\nu}\rho\iota\sigma$, Lord = $800 = 8 \times 100$. Kύριος ἡμῶν, Our Lord = 1768 = 8 × 221. Σωτήρ, Saviour = $1408 = 8^2 \times 22$. Έμμανουήλ, Emmanuel = $25,600 = 8^3 \times 50$. Messias = Messiah = 656 = 8 \times 82.

8 is the first cubic number, and there seems to be something of perfection indicated-something the length and breadth and height of which are equal. The Holy of Holies, both in the Tabernacle and in the Temple, were cubes—in the Tabernacle a cube of 10 cubits; in the Temple of 20 cubits. In Rev. xxi. the New Jerusalem is to be a cube of 12,000 furlongs.

In the Bible the names of the Lord's people are marked by 8 and multiples of 8 in a most remarkable way, while the enemies of God and His people are similarly marked by the number 13 and its multiples.*

DANIEL AND HIS COMPANIONS.

DAN. i. 6.

These count up 888:—

Daniel	95
Hananiah	120
Misael	381
Azariah	292
	888

^{*} For this, see Bullinger's Number in Scripture, pp. 205-234, where there are full details. .

In Ps. xxii. 31, David says of Christ, "They shall come, and shall declare His righteousness unto a people that shall be born." The Hebrew here sums up a total of 888. Jesus is also spoken of as "The salvation of Israel," and the words of the Septuagint (e soteria Israel) are equal to 2 × 888 exactly.

We know from Gen. xlix. that Shiloh is the name of Messias when he comes, and if we add "I am that I am" to Shiloh, we get 345 + 543, which equals 888, the number of Jesus.

Jesus said (John x. 7): "Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep." The sum of this quotation is 5120, which is an exact equivalent to ten times $8 \times 8 \times 8$.

And again, that well-known text in Isaiah, "His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace." These six words as they run in the Hebrew, and so correspond with the six letters in the name Jesus, also sum up precisely 888.

2300, 1335, 1290

In accordance with the promise of the Introduction, I give here a selection from the remarkable treatment of the mystic and prophetic numbers of Daniel, in which an early Lutheran cabalist indulged his genius. I have referred to him at p. 23.

I think his greatest success was with the number 2300 (Dan. viii. 14). This number is of itself rather a remarkable one, as we shall see in the succeeding exposition of it. It is a perfect pyramidal number, a numerus trigonalis, and is the sum of all the letters of the Latin alphabet when they have been numbered according to the triangular progression 1, 3, 6, 10 . . . 276, i.e.—

. ... etc.

I doubt whether any intellectual quality of mind save the plodding and unconquerable perseverance of a genuine German could have accomplished such a feat as the following, for we now have in succession the extraordinary number of 316 appropriate Latin lines which are, every one of them, pure and correct cabalistica of the difficult triangular kind, known as cabala trigonalis. Each Latin line, if reckoned up according to the numerical value of its letters, and according to triangular progression, will amount to 2300 exactly. What makes these 316 lines the more remarkable is the wonderful clearness and neatness of their sense as applied to the matter in hand.

So far this famous number 2300 is made to describe itself as the sum of all the letters of the Latin alphabet, twenty-three in number, from A to Z, reckoned up according to the numeration known as Trigonalis, or triangular, viz.—

the number of the points being 2300, and the progressive computation was divinely chosen to denote the final period of Antiochus Epiphanes.

But this is by no means all. The mystic 2300 is only a prefatory indicator of the other mystic pairs of numbers in Daniel and Johnviz., 1290 and 1335 in Daniel, and 666 and 1260 in John. This is shown by doubling 2300, and we get: 2300 + 2300 equals and no other two words but ecce and ac will suit, so, as our old author says, he did not put them there, but found them there.

Ecce 1290, 1335; ac 666, 1260,

This certainly is an extraordinary cabalistical coincidence, however else we may regard it. So, having found this, he proceeds to develop further these prophetical numbers out of his basic number 2300, by a further cabalistic examination of it.

Having thus filled up the mysteries of Christ from the great number, he proceeds to show the mysteries of Antichrist from it as well. He acts on this principle with the other numbers of Daniel and John throughout. He seems to assume that they contain an antithesis of Christ and Antichrist, a popular Lutheran theory.

Having thus considered the number 2300 taken from Dan. viii. 14, our cabalist goes to the last three verses of this Book of Daniel, and takes from them the two mystical, prophetic, and comforting numbers 1290 and 1335, and proceeds to examine them cabalistically each in exactly ninety-nine different Latin clauses in the following manner:—

Next, the two great numbers of Daniel, 1290 and 1335, are taken together. Our author remarks that if Daniel's greatest number, 2300, be taken, and duo added to it per Cab. Trig., we get 2625, which is the sum of the two (duo) numbers 1290 and 1335.

This book really contains 1801 numerical anagrams, of which 1505 are on the Virgin, and 274 on St. Theresia.

Another edition, much enlarged, was placed at the end of the author's collected works (Romæ, 1701, fol., 2 vols.). It occupies pp. 597-654 of Vol. II., and contains 3799 numerical anagrams on the Virgin Mary, and 1599 in honour of St. Ildephonsus, being a grand total of 5398 cabalistical anagrams. They are generally short and neat. I have selected the Scriptural ones only. Both editions are very rare.

12 ff. prel. and 333 pp. in 12mo.

This curious book belongs to the same class as the Vaticinia sive Prophetiæ Abbatis Joachimi, which had a large circulation in Italy towards the end of the sixteenth century, as the many editions tend to show.

It is, however, much more bulky and learned than were either the Prophecies of Joachim or the numerous Prophetic and Hieroglyphic wheels which were published about the same period in Italy. There is some likeness between these latter and the Zadkiel and Old Moore's Almanacs of the present day, and though originally in Latin, they were made popular by an appended Italian translation and explanation; and the hieroglyphics, as with Zadkiel and the rest, were a great attraction.

But though there are hieroglyphical figures throughout the work of Albricius, his is a very different style of culture from Old Moore and his followers. He was a patrician, a philosopher, and a man of medical science, which makes it all the more strange that he should write such rubbish as is contained in the 350 pages of his book. Its object is to show that the Emperor Leopold was the Leo de Silva which should utterly destroy the Ottoman power, and he does this by Biblical prophecies, by anagrams, chronograms, an occasional cabala, and similar literary artifices. I have heard English lectures on "things that are shortly to come to pass," illustrated (on the walls) by hieroglyphics from the Apocalypse and Daniel, but they were indeed puny attempts compared to what Albricius gives us in his remarkable book.

218 pp. + 8 pp. (ad fin.).

This remarkable book, unique of its kind, contains three parts, each with an engraved frontispiece:—

1. Fastorum Immaculatæ Puerperæ elogialis heptas.

2. Columbæ Gemitus, Heptas Dolorosa.

3. Fastorum rituale Jubilæum per septem Heptades.

Altogether it contains the enormous quantity of 2093 cabala, of which 371 were metrical, either hexameters or pentameters. My selection was confined to cabala on Bible texts only, and, as it happened, not one of these was a metrical one, so the extreme ingenuity of the cabalistic expositions is not here in evidence. As a tour de force, both for quantity and quality, in the cabalistic department of literature, this book holds the record. I know of no copies in England beside my own, neither did I find it in the catalogues of the great libraries of Germany and Italy. The book is full of learned allusions, both theological and classical, and the author tells us he wished to add explanatory notes and commentaries, but his vow of poverty as a Capucin prevented him.
